In calling attention to the medical virtues of this celebrated plant, I would advert to the fact familiar with every physician, that a numerous class of diseases arise from that impure state of the blood, which this active remedial agent is so efficacious in purifying. The great importance attached by medical practitioners to the properties of the Sarsaparilla has engaged the attention of chemists, as to the mode of preparation in which its virtues can be most advantageously combined. Their experiments have resulted in the discovery that the Chemical Compound Fluid Extract is decidedly superior to any other form in which it can be used. Since the introduction of the Fluid Extract, it has grown into rapid and extensive use, and its reputation is constantly increasing. We consider it one of the most valuable articles in the Materia Medica, and find a material advantage in the standard preparation of u. mon colored do.; dark prints; sheetings; woolen blankets; Canton flannels; woolen socks; woolen gloves, lined cotton do; worsted comforters, &c. &c. Also, a supply of cotton batting, wicking, and wadding; which he will sell together with his former stock of goods, at the lowest prices for ready pay.

C. L. MILLER. terial advantage in the standard preparation of u-niform strength which is obtained by the Fluid

JUST RECEIV-

Extract. Its superiority over the D-coctions and Syrups sometimes made use of, is strikingly apparent. It obviates the necessity of preparing fresh decoctions every day; and does not surfait and nauscate the stomach with the large proportion of sugar which has to be taken with each dose of the syrup, and which renders it incapable of holding syrup, and which renders it incapable of holding much of the pure extractive matter in solution.— One bottle of the Fluid Extract is fully equal to Latches, Blind Fastners, Candle Sticks, Pock et Pistols, Screws and Screw Drivers, Brit The virtues of this valuable medicine cannot be too extensively known, as there is scarcely an individual who would not be benefitted by its use. The uniform testimony of medical men in its favor, and the great success which has attended its introduction, both in hospitals and private practice, is a convincing proof of its value, and of its superiority over other preparations of the Sarsaparilla.

I was convicted and sentenced to be steamed 'excruciatingly in my own establishment for 24 hours, by a person competent to manage the process. Alas! I had now become the victim of my own infatuation, and fanatical folly. Compelled to be steamed my-self! If I had ever thought that to 'such base uses I should come at last,' I would long ago, have recovered my respective. long ago have renounced my profession and committed suicide, or went to Texas. But I bore the scourge with indomitable for-titude, and while the fumes of burning vapor gathered red around me, and I was tortured into the extremest agony, I told my crucifying attendants that the operation was not at all painful, that the sensation was very delightful, and if they would give me steam, STEAM, I should live forever.

Having survived the terrible ordeal, unscathed and unblanched, a sad Change came o'er the spirit of my dream, which whilome teemed with entrancing vi-sions of the future, now faded as the heathen poet says

'Like the baseless fabric of some steam And left cold sads behind.

We are such stuff as steam is made of,
And our little life doth come and vanish
Like the insubstantial steam that goes up from my caldron.

My lofty ambition, that like a steam-soapabble soared upwards toward the sun, from which it derived its splendor, had burst, and spattered the suds of my infamy in the eyes of those who were admiring its beautiful as-pirations. My days, like my cheeks, after being steamed, were in the 'yellow leaf,' and the roses of my morning prime were all withered and blighted by the ruthless spoiler of my reputation. But as long as steam came from hot water, I had determ steam came from hot water, I had determined never to desert my favorite profession, and in compliance with the importunities of some of my few remaining friends, I openep a hospital on odoriferous alley, and solicited the patronage of all who were hostile to 'chartered medical monopolies.' Well, after I had prepared my elixirs, and aedicines, and arranged my office again for the reception of customers, I sat down applause that I thought I was struck with lightning. I arose with all my blushing who would make good subjects for dissection. My wonderful invention was so rapid and decisive, that in less than an hour, I had cut a dead-fall trap-door through the floor into the cellar, placed my 'disease e-vaparator' over it, and had it all ready to receive patients and evaporate disease. The steam caldron was placed on the trap-door,

But his bones did not rest in peace. His office was ransacked, the remains of Mr. Showers and the 'great unknown' were discovered, and the great unknown were discovered, and while Juliet was weeping over the re-remains of a murdered father, her heartless brother accused her of being accessary to the murder. She was tried, condemned, and executed; and interred at the same time with her husband. "In the Youth's Companion of Feb. 16th.
I saw a piece on the force of habit. I well know what that is. Once when at sea, I was short of provisions. Eventually the last morcel of victuals we had on board, him out! the scoundrel has stole my jack. with a slide so constructed with springs as ass!' Alas! I now thought that Dr. Du to let a man through the bottom so quick as was over the fire, which was a little rice, not one sixth part enough for a moss John had devised a plot to ruin me forever. to prevent any of the water from running not one sixth part enough for a mess. In a moment he was in the midst of the company, and pointing the officer to me, to contain the patient, and then looked our main sail, we were obliged to sit down company, and pointing the officer to me, said, there he is, take the scoundard level by the collar and drag him out.'—I tally executed, as I knew it would execute three times in order to get breath. We were nearly exhausted for want of food. Of course we well knew the want of provisions. Yet I have seen the time that my In a few moments I heard a loud knock in vain. I could already perceive from the at my office door, which I instantly opened, desire for Tobacco was vastly stronger in vain. I could already perceive from the change in Mr. G.'s countenance that he was about to denounce me as a thief, a vagrant, and an impostor. Mrs. G. said that she did not think that Dr. Du John would make such an infamous charge against me without a proper cause. Here I was solemnly out a proper cause. Here I was solemnly of the lovely Juliet, (who had once rejected of the lovely Juliet, of the lovely the offer of my heart and hand) and ex. fore morning, if the wind continued. I felt from using it, I soon had a better appetitemy sleep was sweeter-my mind more composed—my nerves were more firm— I grew more fleshy: and now I enjoy perfect health, and can endure double the tigue that I could for a long time before I quit the use of Tobacco. I realy pity the person who gets strongly in the habit of using it, for it is almost impossible to quit. using it, for it is almost impossible to quit. Some persons say they use it to preserve their teeth; others, to keep their teeth from aching, &c. It did not preserve my teeth, nor keep them from aching. I do not believe it can do any good, either to preserve or keep them from aching. The truth is, when people are once in the habit of using it, they love it so well, and to leave it off has such a powerful effect on the system. has such a powerful effect on the system, that they do not like to undertake itme, Tobacco was poison; and I believe it is to all who use it. It is about five years since I quit. I now take for my motto, "touch not, tast not, handle not."

Starting Children in the World .- Many an unwise parrent labors hard and lives sparingly all his life for the purpose of leaving enough to give his children a start in the world, as it is cal'e'. Setting a young man aftoat with money left him by his relatives, is like tying bladders under the symplectic of the district, to sign all warrants for the collection of taxes, and all orders the symplectic of the district to the district of the dist stance of Mr. Showers'son, who had violently opposed my marriage with his sister, and often hinted that I had mnrdcred his father.

A large company were invited, and expected at our wedding, but none came. I was suspected of the harrid crime! We were married alone, and when the minister had left us and his whole nature made subservient to the laws which govern man, and you have
